

Puleng Tshitlho is a Professional Officer in the Strategic Partnerships Directorate at the National Research Foundation (NRF) of South Africa. She has extensive experience in the science granting landscape having worked in different units of the NRF including Reviews and Evaluation and Grant Management and System Administrations with a focus on international collaborations. Puleng led the first summer school of the Southern African Young Scientist Summer Programme (SA-YSSP) in Applied Systems Analysis hosted at the University of the Free State from 2012–2015. She has extensive knowledge of South Africa's Higher Education and Training landscape and the National System of Innovation and is currently studying for her MPhil in Science and Technology Studies with University of Stellenbosch.